

I was resettled in Syracuse as a refugee from Somalia in 2000 at the age of 13. I went on to graduate from Fowler high school in 2005 and then graduated with a bachelor in Science, majoring in psychology from Syracuse University in 2010. I then worked as a case worker for approximately 10 years at Catholic Charities refugee resettlement program and currently took a job at Upstate Hospital as a care manager. I joined Onondaga county human rights commission in 2020.
